KATERINA SIDOROVA

I'm Katerina Sidorova, a visual artist and researcher based in The Hague, Netherlands. Working with installation, performance, and text, I explore multiple facets of mortality and necropolitics in my practice. My artistic interests lie within the themes of death beyond human-centrism, representation of state power, and the performativity of non-democratic political regimes. I'm equally fascinated by cyclical ecologies, radical death acceptance, creating space for grief and practices of resistance. Particularly engaged in exploring societal hierarchies, mythologies, staging, and performativity as a political strategy, I seek to understand how mortality reverberates on all levels of human and more-than-human experience, from the intimate and personal to the grand dynamics of power between the state and its population. At the liminal point where sculptural meets theatrical, I work to create environments that serve as platforms for performative actions, curation, experimentation, collaboration, and improvised installations. Bringing the materiality and reuse of vernacular objects and historical artifacts to a higher tier by weaving them into a multilayered storylines contained in each installation. By embracing imperfection as a method I bring performative action to collaborative studio/gallery/storage spaces that I create. My works are imbued with the notion of inevitable decay, crafted predominantly from natural materials that are likely to change their state over time.

PUBLICATIES

2026 Letters to a Grieving Land Boek Katerina Sidorova Nederland This volume explores the intricate relationship between human activities and the environment, focusing on the enduring impact of military actions, industrialization, and geopolitical boundaries on landscapes, earth, and soil. Featuring contributions Annechien Meier, Yvonne Bos, Tamara N. Lewis Arredondo, Arina Adju, Amy Gowen, Beatrix Futák-Campbell, Marjolein Ossewaarde, Maitiú Mac Cárthaigh, anna andrejew, Kate Price, Michelle Teran and Su Yang «Traumascape: Letters to a Grieving Land» examines the concept of ‘traumascapes’ - landscapes that retain the imprints of past traumas. Through a series of essays and personal letters, the book addresses how these scarred environments influence our collective narrative and resilience. Printed with soil inks, each copy includes a unique, plantable paper containing seeds provided by the authors symbolizing the potential for ecological and cultural renewal. This interdisciplinary work offers a thoughtful investigation into the memories held by landscapes and the possibilities for healing and transformation.
