SARAH ATZORI

My work weaves together the cycles of transformation, ancestral rituals, and the feminine spirit, creating immersive spaces where memory, land, and tradition converge to reveal the resilience of both nature and community.

My work delves into the deep ties between identity, memory, and the cycles of transformation, influenced by the landscapes of Sardinia and my Dutch upbringing. Through performance, sound, and installation, I reinterpret ancestral rituals, centering on themes of loss, renewal, and the strength of communal bonds. Drawing inspiration from the songs of my grandmother, my practice reflects the enduring connection between land, tradition, and the feminine spirit. I seek to create immersive spaces where past and present merge, highlighting the resilience of natural and human ecosystems. At the core of my work is a commitment to collaboration and the shared stories that bind us to one another and the world around us.
