

LENNART HEINER

at the center of my practice lies the act of drawing, which I explore as an end in itself, rather than as preparation for further work.

Len Heiner is an artist and ceramicist from The Hague, The Netherlands. His work manifests in large varieties and quantities, often depicting symbol-like, humorous and naively rendered images. When juxtaposed, these bursts of drawings create tension and narrative in the spaces between. Somewhat like a playlist on shuffle, where the sequence of songs create interesting shifts in meaning and experience. Many influences enter Len's visual language, making his body of work a research into medium and handwriting. Besides drawing Len is an apprentice potter. The practice and discipline needed to master the medium of ceramics forms a counterpart to the freedom and looseness he allows into his drawing practice.
